

Autobiography

Let me tell you the shocking story of the treatments of Morocco to people that studied and worked at UC Berkeley and Ecole Polytechnique.

It is a shame for these 2 universities that alumni and employees would be treated this way, and a shame of the country of Morocco to treat their citizens this way, let alone those who succeed at studying at the best universities in the world.

There is so much darkness and cruelty that it's difficult to know where to start, but don't be shocked because this country of Morocco does the same things to so many people in the country.

What the Moroccan government does:

Just so you all know what they do here, I am sure some of you already know, a Minister of Morocco told us that in Morocco they don't want a lot of people to graduate because it's easier to control people that are non educated and poor. It is known that a population less educated are more docile but it's not just in Morocco, it's indeed in a lot of shit countries that are not smart enough to know how to manage intelligent people

Did you know that the Moroccan government bribes and threatens doctors to give medicines that are considered dangerous drugs in developed countries, so they can make people addicted and stop them from having visas and progressing at their jobs inside the country? That's one of their ways to silence people

Did you know that the Moroccan government changes the content and order of the Quran for their political agenda?

Did you know that the Moroccan government uses as political tool sexual harassment, molestation, forced marriages, touching, and other dark sex methods in public spaces, trains, taxis, ... and that they remove from the law the ways that you can protect yourselves from it

Did you know that a Moroccan man I met at the United Nations told me that they buy kids from their parents at 1 million dirhams?

The Moroccan government conducts human sex trafficking

The Moroccan government only lets people from specific family names and specific first names get to the high positions in politics and companies based in Morocco

In Morocco, the government gives the order to target people who succeed; so as soon as anyone with the Moroccan passport starts to succeed in their field, they should leave to other countries while they have the chance

The Moroccan government gives the order to silence people who criticize the Moroccan country, they don't understand that criticizing is a way to development

Examples from my life:

My cousin's last names are Bennani and Alaoui

I was sexually harassed at my own house in Morocco by Moroccans I met at the United Nations while two members of my family were dying of cancer, my grandmother and my uncle who was a high officer at the Moroccan secret police.

Since the day I went to the United Nations as a young Moroccan ambassador, I was tortured in Morocco for 4 years.

The way they found us to make us ambassadors of Morocco was through Rotaract volunteering in Casablanca, which I had heard about through a friend whose dad also studied at UC Berkeley.

During the United Nations event, as soon as I understood the wrong things that Moroccans were doing, I tried to leave, and they came to my hotel room in New York where I was always alone to remove my passport. The ones that weren't alone in their rooms and tried to leave were told that it was dangerous to leave and that they should wait until they went back to Morocco.

Once back in Morocco, when I tried to leave to countries that required visas for Moroccans, I was every time rejected and receiving calls right before the rejections from the same agency that brought us to the United Nations, the Italian Diplomatic Academy in Morocco.

When I tried to leave to countries that didn't require visas for Moroccans, like Turkey, as soon as I arrived there, the Turkish police asked me my passport, and when they saw that it was Moroccan, they said Red Alert, took me to the edge of a very high bridge, grabbed me from my genitals, and told me that they received the order from Morocco, and that I should go back to Morocco or I would get killed.

I was sexually harassed daily for years, evidently by a woman who wanted to force me to marry her; while I was going through treatments for depression. She was using so many ways, hacking me, bribing taxi drivers and cops, and even using religious arguments. The only way I found to get her to stop sexually harassing me was to make myself undesirable, to show that I didn't want to get married, and to make her and her parents disapprove of her marrying someone like me... It worked because she stopped forcing me to marry her after many months of trying, but she didn't stop sexually harassing me and hacking me...

I met her at an event at the United Nations for Moroccan students, after her friend came to talk to me about her tattoo in the plane flight to New York. Since that event, every time I was taking a taxi, she was sending me messages through the radio or the driver, every time I was turning the Moroccan radio in my car or the Moroccan TV in my house, she was sending me messages through it; even using her name, my name, her friend's name, and what she wanted me to do, and how much money she would give me if I did, in millions. Then when that wasn't working, I was seeing the same messages in the advertisements on Instagram and YouTube. I infer that she was able to do this by bribing people who used my phone's location to run targeted ads, because when I was using VPNs and Ad Blockers, the messages stopped.

Also, she was using information I was saying next to an Android phone's microphone, never any information I was saying next to an iOS phone purchase in North America. Moreover, she never used information from an Android phone I bought in the US, until I left the phone in a person's car who left for about an hour while I was playing soccer. After that, my phone started heating up often, and I was constantly receiving notifications about my phone's memory getting full, even though I wasn't using the phone, and none of the apps I installed was running in the background. Since then, she started using information I put on that phone too.

The only way that seems to stop her from sexually harassing me is to tell people and to do cyber security protections, because every time I did tell a person about it, like a friend or a professor, there was less sexual harassment; and every time I was using cyber security protections, like VPNs or Tor or an iOS bought from Europe or North America, there was less sexual harassments. This is why I am personally and deeply interested in cyber security and human rights, to protect myself, protect my family and friends, and protect people in need.

Conclusion:

What if every human on the Moroccan soil had either a European or North American passport, would every one of these humans have the developed human rights that Europe and North America have already achieved?
